Travel insurance offers travelers coverage for unforeseen problems, from a cancelled flight to a serious illness—or in rare cases, even an act of terrorism. If an illness, accident, or other covered unforeseen circumstance forces a traveler to cancel or interrupt their travel plans, they face two potentially major financial losses—money invested in nonrefundable pre-payments and medical expenses that in many instances aren't covered by your primary health insurance.
<input type="checkbox"/> I'd like the Delta Vacations insurance for $109 per person that covers group air and land. <input type="checkbox"/> I'm not taking the group air. Please send a Travel Guard quote. <input type="checkbox"/> No. I decline travel insurance.
